A LENTEN MESSAGE FROM PASTOR TOM

Dear Friends in Christ,

Lent arrives each year with the invitation to slow our pace and pay closer attention – to God, to one another, and to the contours of our own lives. The forty days from Ash Wednesday to Easter echo Jesus’ time in the wilderness when his faith was stretched and his reliance on God grew. Lent offers us a similar stretch of time to examine our own faith and to engage in spiritual practices that reorient us toward God. Practices such as prayer, service and devotion can help us notice where our attention may have wandered and where God seeks to engage with us on a deeper level.

Our Lenten sermon series this year, Holy Detours: Following Jesus to New Life, grows out of a simple but persistent truth: life rarely unfolds as planned. Scripture is filled with stories of people whose journeys with God take unexpected turns—through disruption, delay, or dislocation. Rather than avoiding those moments, Lent invites us to look more closely at them. Again and again, the biblical witness suggests that God’s presence is most easily found in places we did not intend to go. Detours need not be seen as signs of failure or a faith gone astray; but instead can become holy ground, where Christ meets us and offers the possibility of new life.

One of the invitations of Lent, then, is to attend not only to our inner lives, but to the ways our faith is bound up with the lives of others. Theologian Walter Brueggemann writes that true repentance is not merely about personal improvement, but about a reorientation of life toward God’s larger purposes of mercy and restoration. Lent can become a season for learning – listening more carefully to voices we might otherwise overlook, reflecting on where compassion is needed, and considering how our resources, attention, and energy might be shared more faithfully.

I pray this season will offer space for personal growth, honesty reflection and openness to the new life God is already bringing into being.

May God bless you,

Pastor Tom

Let's Talk About Mental Health

Sunday, March 15, 11:15 am, Halldorson Hall

This discussion will be facilitated by Madine Despeine-Udoh and Genaya Palmer from the Mental Health Association. Join us for an open and welcoming conversation about mental health, what it means, why it matters, and how we can support one another. We'll talk about ways to recognize when someone might be struggling, how to start a caring conversation, and what resources are available to help. Everyone is welcome, including youth and teens. This is a safe space to share ideas, ask questions, and learn how to look out for friends, family, and ourselves. We'll also test your knowledge with a few fun activities and explore ways we can make a difference in our community and in the lives of those we love. Together, we can break down the stigma, build understanding, and strengthen our community one conversation at a time.
